and blues predominated, as was ever placed on a canvas by a painter. It was an animated throng, which took advantage of every chance to break out into song or cheer. The weather was that of an Indian summer day, comfortable alike to those who were passive observers of the struggle on the field before them, and to the men who bore the brunt of battle. No such throng ever invaded this city before, and the means of transportation to and from the city, ample as it was, were today inadequate. To one complained, however, and the great task of moving the many thousands was simplified by the good nature which prevailed.

Among the distinguished spectators were Vice-President-elect Charles W. Fairbanks and Mrs. Fairbanks, who were guests of their two sons, who are at Yale; J. Pierpont Morgan and August Belmont; Miss Alice Roosevelt, with a party of four friends, sat in the Harvard bleachers. Despite all precautions, the game was a little delayed at the start and so slowly did it progress that dusk was falling when the end came and the moon threw its beams on the people as they flocked in town, homeward bound. The chief reason for the length of the contest was the slowness with which the teams lined up after each scrimmage, more especially Harvard, when time and again it looked as if her men waited breathing space.

Game Rough at Times.
Yale played faster than the crimson and went from beginning to end without a change in her line-up. Harvard played many substitutes in places of men who seemed to have been used up in scrimmages, but luckily no player was seriously hurt. At times the game was rough with some flatulents. In every position Yale had the advantage. Harvard used repeatedly to carry the ball outplayed the men against them, and Shevlin and Neal, at ends, being fast down the field, under kicks, and sure in their tackling. Hoyt outlasted Sperry and Nicholson, punting and was a worthy successor to Mitchell, who taught him with the art of booting the ball. On Harvard's side

Brill showed up the best, although Matthews, who replaced Randall at left end, did finely.

Yale got her first touchdown by consistent rushing in Harvard's territory in the first half. The second came through a blocked kick in the second half. Harvard's most successful attack was a cross-back, which several times opened holes in Yale's line, through which singularly enough the backs could make no pronounced gains.

FINISHES EXCITING ON NASHVILLE TRACK

First Fall Meeting for Several Years Past Inaugurated at Cumberland Park.

(By Associated Press.)
NASHVILLE, TENN., November 19.—The first fall meeting held in Nashville for several years past was inaugurated at Cumberland Park today. Two favorites, a second choice and three outsiders got the money, the finishes as a rule being exciting and the fields large. Bad News was scratched out of the Southern turf handicap, at a mile and a sixteenth, and Lady Jocelyn, the outsider, at 4 to 1, and carrying one hundred pounds, had no trouble in maintaining her lead throughout, winning with some to spare from Branca. The time, 1:47 1-4, equals the track record for the distance. Summary:

First race—six furlongs—Rusk (2 to 1) first, Polles Bergeres (2 to 1) second, Nannie Hodge (13 to 5) third. Time, 1:14. Second race—five furlongs—Conjurers (3 to 1) first, McVain (2 to 1) second, Bestling (20 to 1) third. Time, 1:32. Third race—mile—Mafalda (7 to 5) first, Chanticoelle (6 to 1) second, Rachel Ward (7 to 1) third. Time, 1:42 3-8. NO POISON IN CHAMBERLAIN'S COUGH REMEDY.

From Napier, New Zealand, Herald: Two years ago the Pharmacy Board of New South Wales, Australia, had an analysis made of all the cough medicines then in the market. Out of the entire list they found only one that they declared was entirely free from all poisons. This exception was Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, made by the Chamberlain Medicine Company, Des Moines, Iowa, U. S. A. The absence of all narcotics makes this remedy the safest and best that can be had; and it is with a feeling of security that any mother can give it to her little ones. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is especially recommended by the makers for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough. When taken in time it prevents pneumonia. This remedy is for sale by all Druggists.

SINKING CREEK.

Flows Along for Miles and Then Suddenly Disappears.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)
WASHINGTON, D. C., November 19.—The geographical survey has just published a map of the Roan Mountain quadrangle, in the mountainous district of Tennessee and North Carolina. Range after range of mountains extends diagonally across the quadrangle from the northeast to southwest, following in the main the boundary lines between the States. Among them are the Roan Mountains, Iron Mountains, Unaka Mountains, and Bald Mountains. The highest mountain shown on the map is Roan High Knob, in the southeastern part of the quadrangle, which is marked 6313 feet above sea level.

The northeastern part of the quadrangle is shown to be a limestone country, full of "sinkholes" and caverns, where streams flow for miles and then disappear underground. One of the most notable of these strange disappearances is that of Sinking Creek, which has its head waters in the Cherokee Mountains, southeast of Johnson City. For seven miles it runs along in its shallow bed, with no hint of vagrancy in its course to distinguish it from other well conducted streams, then suddenly, within three-quarters of a mile from Watauga River it gives up to the underworld and is lost from sight.

Such instances are by no means rare in the limestone country of Southwest Virginia. At the lower end of Abba Valley, in Tazewell county, on the farm of Colonel James Browning, there is a spring the flow from which is of the volume of a fair-sized river. There are many signs that there is a large underground river running the entire length of the valley, some nine miles. There are few springs in the valley, and the water running from them is from the feet from where it comes from the ground.

Virginians Put Up Great Game Against Middies at Annapolis.

TEAMS WERE WELL MATCHED

Friends of Navy Apprehensive
Lest Eleven Will be Too
Weak for West Point.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
ANNAPOLIS, MD., Nov. 19.—Annapolis defeated the eleven of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute here this afternoon by a score of 11 to 0 in the final game of the season on the local grounds. The Navy scored once in each half, the first on a series of hard-earned gains through the line, and the second on a punt which Doherty recovered and ran forty yards for a touchdown.

The greatest interest was taken in today's game as giving the last chance to Judge the team's playing ability before the Army is met next Saturday in Philadelphia. The friends of the Navy received only slight encouragement today to their hope that the Navy would not be again decisively defeated this year by the Army. In some particulars, such as defensive work at times and in quick changing, the Navy players showed satisfactory work, but there was entirely too much fumbling, and their plays will probably develop far from sufficient strength to gain against so powerful a team as West Point.

The game of the Virginians was only slightly inferior to that of the local players, and in straight gains through the line they made greater gains than the Navy. They also worked in trick plays with great degree of smoothness, and the backs handled punts cleverly. Their great weakness was the number of men who would have to drop out of plays on account of injuries, which destroyed the snap of the play. They played with great determination, and narrowly missed a score on several occasions during each half. On the whole the teams were better matched than is indicated by the score.

The line-up was:

WATSON SAYS HE IS IN FOR FIGHT TO FINISH.

High Priest of Populism Says Party Will Some Day Sweet Country.

(By Associated Press.)

Macon, Ga., Nov. 19.—Thomas E. Watson, defeated candidate of the People's party for President, spoke today at his home, Thomson, Ga. He said that he proposed to campaign actively during the next four years, and declared a "fight to the death" with the Democratic party. Mr. Watson made bitter attacks on Thomas Taggart and Patrick McCarren, and ridiculed Judge Parker at length, declaring that the Democratic candidate's campaign had begun and closed with a telegram.

Mr. Watson prophesied that the Populists would organize the farmers of the South and West and ultimately sweep the country.

The house was elaborately and tastefully decorated with chrysanthemums, the prevailing colors being yellow and white, the day-lilies being excluded, and many candles in silver candelabra and shaded lamps shone softly upon the pretty scene. The guests were received at the door and escorted to the cloak room by three little maidens, very daintily dressed in white dresses with yellow ribbons. These were Misses Clara Speece, Mary Oliver and Mary Slow.
